A Recipe for More Inclusive Non-Formal Education

We all are different... and it brings beauty and richness to our activities!

Let us be aware of the potential barriers... and address them!

Being inclusive

- Be mindful of the cultural background of the participants.
- Include people with disabilities in the creation process.
- Provide precise logistics for the arrival of a diverse group.
- Have a sensitivity session, including the needs of minority representatives, etc.
- Involve experts in topics people with experience in a digitally accessible media.
- Address the religious obligations and allow for performing religious duties.
- Adjust the programme to accommodate the specific needs (e.g. related to dietary, religious obligations or accessibility, personal assistants, and sound equipment).
- Provide volunteers, trained in assisting people with disabilities in the creation process.

If you want to reach more diverse groups

- Prepare the programme at all times while receiving feedback.
- Be available for any use which may be made of the information contained therein.
- Observe, listen and follow content warnings.
- Let us be conscious choices of speaking.
- Be open and grateful for activities.
- Increase the level of questions and support.
- Provide a feedback box.

If you want to include everyone

- Assign more time for improvements/needs.
- Involve experts in topics you are not proficient in.
- Ask people with experience in a digitally accessible media.
- Apply for funds for the event.
- Choose venues with easy access to all the amenities.
- Create a digitally accessible application form.
- Include people with disabilities in the process.
- Choose accessible media.
- Choose digital tools that facilitate the arrival of a diverse group.
- Create based on the inputs from the Learning Lab Pro participants and edited by Gośka Tur.

The infographic has been produced by Service Civil International Poland.

Learn more at: https://poland.sci.ngo/en/project/learning-lab/

More... and it brings beauty... and it brings beauty... and it brings beauty!