

IMPACT MEASUREMENT IN PRACTICE

- BEHIND THE SCENES

Online meeting with Ingrid Danckaerts

"It is good to learn from your mistakes.

It's better to learn from other people's mistakes – and from their successes, too!"

In this online dialogue, you will meet Ingrid Danckaerts, the former president of the Coordinating Committee of International Voluntary Service, and exchange on the different impact studies CCIVS carried out over the last 10 years.

Measuring impact is something that needs consistency and an overall framework to compare results. CCIVS, the Global Network for International Voluntary Service Organisations, brings together more than 180 international volunteer organisations and has since 2011 worked on encouraging organisations to engage with impact research.

Several projects took place focussing on impact research or integrating impact research in their overall project planning.

Ingrid will shortly introduce CCIVS's work on impact and the lessons learned while leaving ample space for questions and answers so that collectively we can broaden our knowledge and learn from shared practices.

- How did CCIVS measure impact?
- What were the benefits – if any?
- Was it a bed of roses or were there also obstacles – and if so, how were they tackled?
- Is impact measurement worth the effort??!

- these are some of the questions we are curious to ask.
